Westward the course of Empire takes its way. The four first acts already past; The fifth shall close the drama with the day, Times noblest offspring is its last. Bishop Berkeley. L Mother of nations! on thy stricken brow, Sad with the shadows of remembered glory, When thou on earths primeval thrones didst rule. The orient realm of mystery and story; The death-dew freezeth for an awful crown, Mocking the magic of thine old renown. But yet thou hast a royal power--a power that cannot die, Till all the trampling centuries have sobbed and thundered by: For thou art lord of the pleasant lands; the boundless lands that lie In the golden light--the endless light of the realm of Memoet. II. Shadowy specters dim and vast, Seem to glide along the past; Methinks I see a warrior...
