Placed on this isthmus of a middle state, A being darkly wise, and rudely great; With too much knowledge for the skeptic side, With too much weakness for the Stoic's pride, He hangs between; in doubt to act, or rest; In doubt to deem himself a god, or beast; In doubt his mind or body to prefer; Born but to die, and reasoning but to err; Alike in ignorance, his reasoning such, Whether he thinks too little or too much; Chaos of thought and passion, all confused; Still by himself abused or disabused; Created half to rise or half to fall; Great lord of all things, yet a prey to all; Sole judge of truth, in endless error hurled The glory, jest and riddle of the world! Such was man as viewed through the eyes of Alexander Pope, but few of the present generation read Pope, and yet mankind is much the same now as two hundred years ago, and for the average individual these famous lines are as true now as when they were first penned. There have been those in all ages who have devoted their lives to the study of man, and these have at least apprehended the nature of the problems involved in his origin, nature, and destiny, though they may have been unable to solve them.
